

CANAQLIAN

The green retreats of Academus

Mark Akenside

Principal's Message

This has been an important and an interesting year at North Albion C.I. The disruption and frequent frustration caused by the building programme, particularly during the fall term was, of course, unavoidable. I should like to congratulate, and thank, both students and staff for their understanding of the situation and for their readiness to adjust to constantly changing conditions as the need arose.

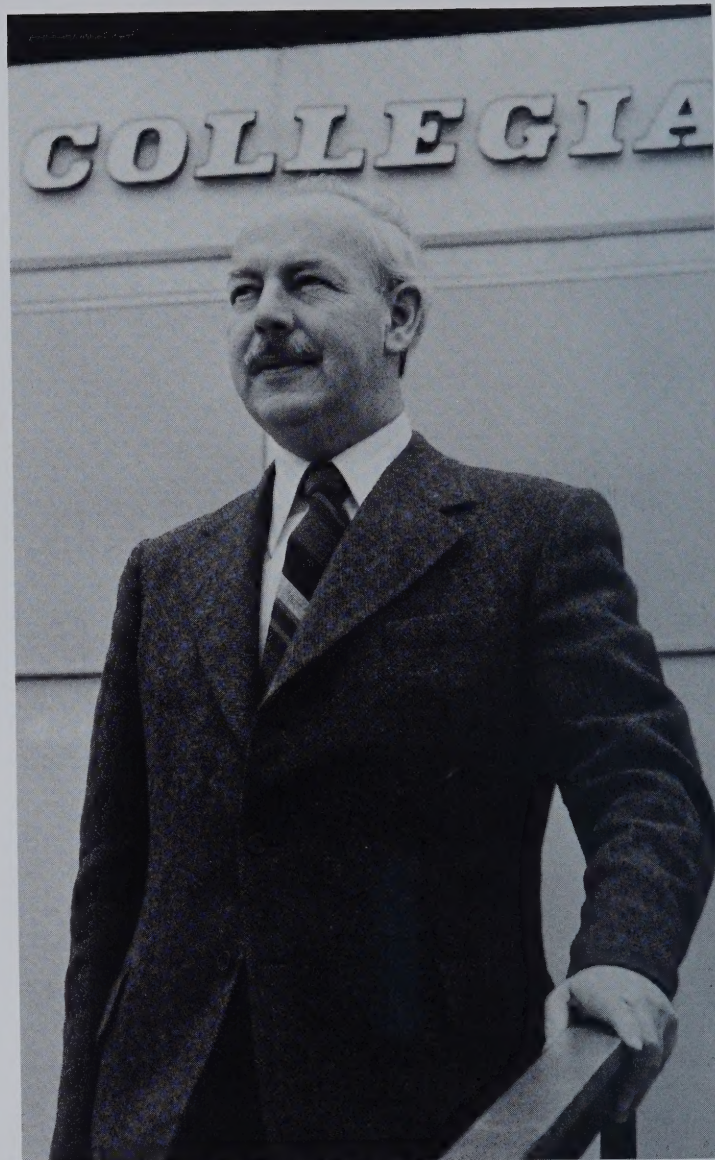

This was also the year during which the credit system was introduced. This system is somewhat analogous to a bank account. It isn't the existence of the bank account itself which has any particular significance but the amount of money one has in the account that matters, and so, it isn't the number of credits in themselves which are as important as what subjects those credits represent which gives significance to the Secondary School Graduation Diploma. If you desire a "sound" academic education, the opportunity is offered under the credit system. If you want something less than that, the credit system offers that opportunity to you also. Thus, the freedom of choice now possible, places a grave responsibility on the individual student in making his credit decisions.

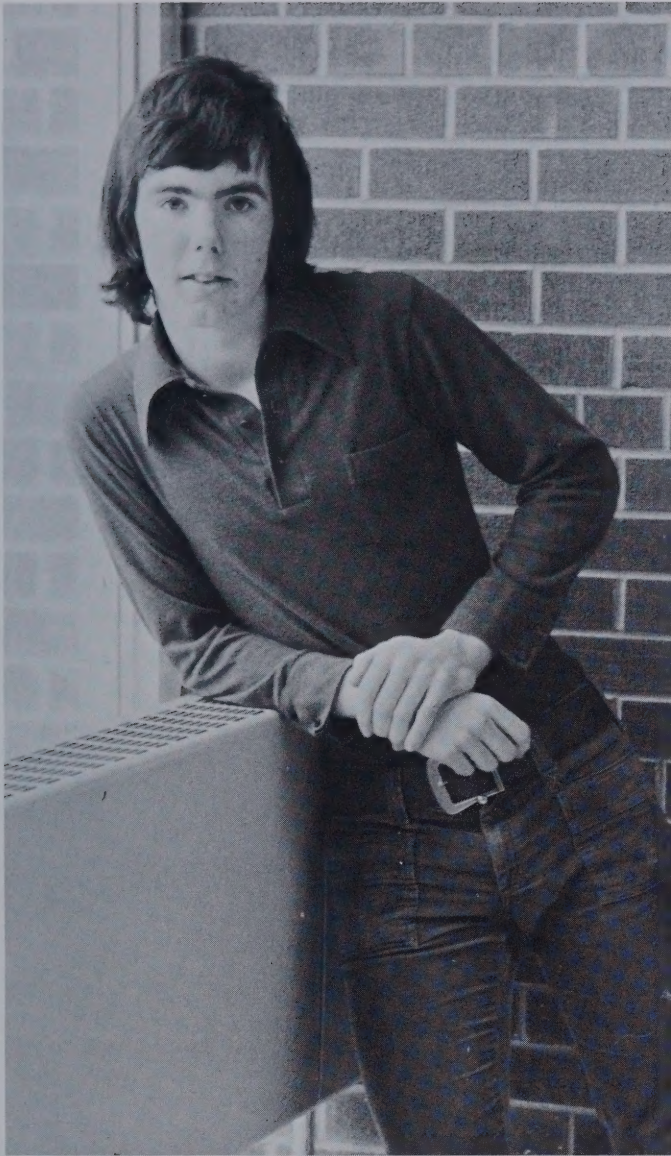

Just as this has been a year of change, next year will continue the process. The new shops will come into use, student enrolment is expected to increase as is the number of teachers on staff. The initial planning for the next addition is in hand. Yet the underlying spirit of N.A.C.I. - the spirit of friendliness, high endeavours and personal achievement - must continue to prevail if these changes are to evolve without weakening the true CanAClan spirit.

I would like to thank the members of the staff and the student body through whose efforts the academic excellence and the extra-curricular programme has been so well maintained throughout 1972-3.

To those of you who will be going forth to other endeavours at the end of the year - good fortune.

F.F. Knight,
Principal.

President's Message

Well this is it-1972-73, the year NACI comes to its reckoning. My predecessors and even the students of earlier generations saw it coming and warned us of its consequences. I am speaking of the inevitable end to the small school where everybody knew everybody else and what they were doing. In our graduation to becoming a big school, we have lost perhaps some of our communal spirit. Today, you cannot possibly walk down the hall and greet 1,200 fellow students by name. I do feel that there has been a misconception on the part of many people. Communal spirit as it was, has left North Albion, but true school spirit is still around. Contrary to the theories of many "old timers".

Our United Appeal project was the best North Albion has seen in years. Eighty percent of the school went out and worked washing cars, wrecking cars, selling donuts etc. In 1972-73 NACI raised more money and put forth more effort for the Christmas Welfare project than in the past two years combined.

Our wrestling team made their debut this year and fought impressively for us. Though they had few actual wins, next year they will prove to be a real threat.

Our Girls' Junior Basketball Team managed to reach second place while our Girls' Senior Team just missed getting into the finals.

Football this year saw our Senior Cougars reach the semi-finals with fairly large crowds of Canacians turning out for all games. Our Junior Team made it to the quarter finals and put forth a fantastic effort.

Many new clubs have also appeared this year. Most clubs have grown substantially, and lo...the emergence of a School Newspaper. Who said school spirit was dying?

This year we have had difficulties. To quote a portion the minutes of a recent Staff Meeting concerning the construction:

"MINOR PROBLEMS?"

We have, in the building of the school, seen something truly unique. There was an appearance of a spring in the middle of the newly constructed section of the school. This led to a delay of three months before the Chemistry Labs and Art Room could be used. Great credit should be given to Mr. Knight for having resolved many such "minor problems."

We have experienced crowded halls, small doors and generally been victims of new designs and lower budgeting. Despite such hardships the great majority of NACI students have survived and will return.

We now have reached the final end of a great era with an even greater one ahead of us. We must no longer live with past but look to the future.

This was a very good year. Next year will be even better. I thank all the staff and students for giving me a most enjoyable year.

Mike Schell

Canacian Staff

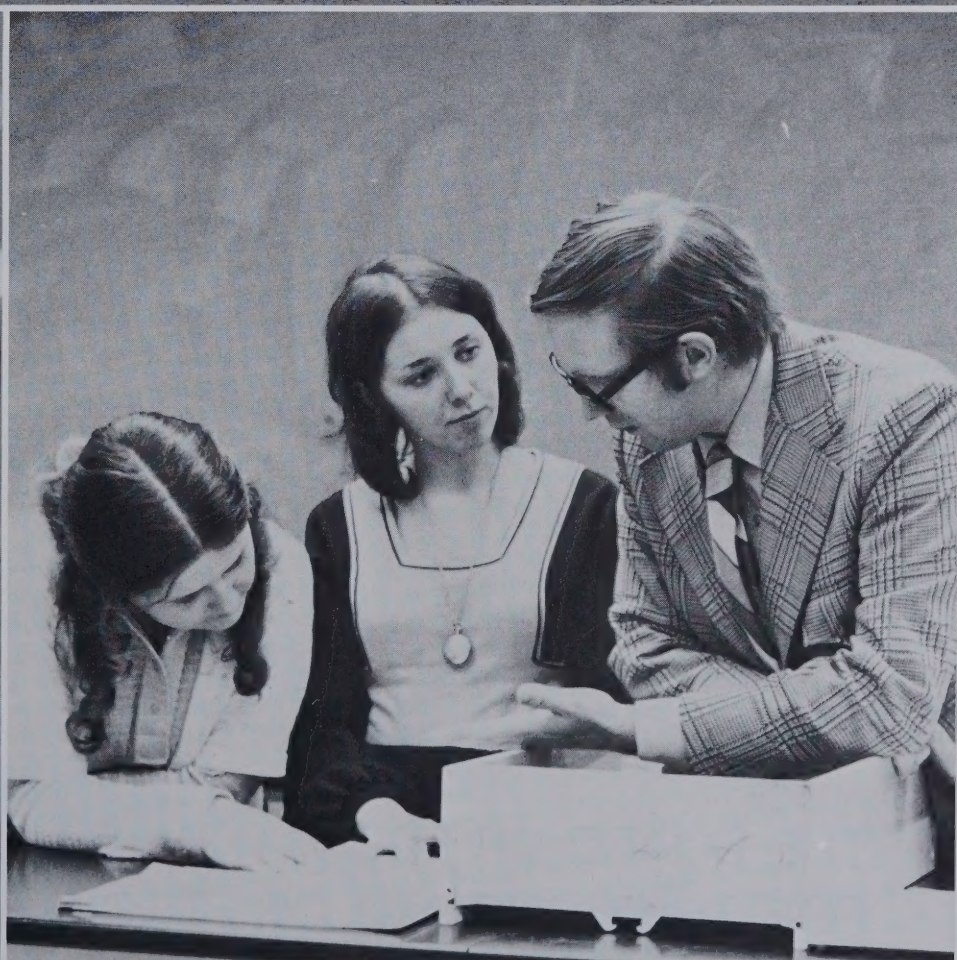

The aim of this year's yearbook is to provoke a reaction. Such changes as the cover design and the spot colour on the photography spread have a twofold purpose. One purpose is to make you notice the book enough to give constructive criticism or even help with it next year. The other is to try out several new things that next year's staff could learn from.

Now that I've explained that, I'd like to thank all of the people who helped on the yearbook including Mr. Mair and Mrs. Preston. In particular, I would like to thank the photography editor, Alan Holmes, who did an exceptional job taking and printing the pictures.

Finally I'd like to say that there are some people in this school who think that a yearbook is useless and too expensive. I disagree because a yearbook is the only solid thing you will ever take home after a year at high school. It's like a souvenir that brings back the best memories, and besides, where else would you put your autographs?

Sincerely,
Dave Ellis.

We all like to see pictures of ourselves and our names in print! Hence the popularity of a Year Book. However, this book is indeed a mirror reflecting some part of your educational experience.

The Board of Education for the Borough of Etobicoke is committed to your education and has enjoyed being part of your life, and now expects your evaluation.

What is a good education?

A good education is a stimulating and enriching curriculum taught and shared by teachers with professional qualifications and supported by Principals, Vice-Principals and all staff to give you, the student, an honest self-image for your adult life. Your self-image, we hope, has been sharpened by your living and learning in the schools of Etobicoke.

You have learned how to make choices with a credit system. You have appreciated all those on the team who have reinforced your self-determination. You have expressed gratitude for the many new and exciting opportunities of learning and growth. Now you are aware of yourself, your abilities and potentials, and you can confidently extend your projections of your future hopes and choices.

Good Luck — you really don't need it if you truly know yourself.

This educational System will be waiting for your progress reports, and only YOU can make them to us.

art and literature

The fever winds swept low out of the sickly hills.
 Death comes astride those hell-winds,
 he drives them on like some demonic steed.
 Grinning sardonically he thumbs his razor keen blade in hot anticipation of its morbid use.
 His pungent charnel breath prickles his prey
 as he scythes them down like blighted wheat.
 Death stalks the street, they are his to taint,
 as he infects and plunders his perisable prey.
 See! See him there, above the city!
 That monolithic hellish caricature of a human skeleton.
 Death performs his accursed dance of the dead
 under the yellow rays of a rancorous moon.
 He shoulders his reddened, wetly glistening scythe and enjoys the burning funeral pyres that besparkle
 the torpid streets of the city.

As he mounts his airy steed,
 he thrusts his rotting skull-face moonward and issues forth such satanic laughter, that man should here but once in his life,
 at its end.
 With a rise of the hell-winds Death leaves the city.
 Death has left
 but he will return someday for me,
 and you.
 On that day when Death stands before you
 as tall as a building, holding his ponderous reaping scythe high and the reek and stench of a thousand slaughter houses pierces your nostrils,
 remember-to conquer Death you only have to die.

Space is endless with Infinite corridors, as Man's mind expands out.

I follow the sun
but in the morning the sun is following me.

by Kirby Allen

The room is grey
So the sky is, and the water and the sun
You see, they mourn
for she has abdicated
Who?
Value of course.
They mourn because value has been torn apart stripped and left to perish on the hillside.
The revolutionaries felt she was-too ostentatious
"None of that", they said.
"We want truth; simple and bare, no pretenses."

Now she in fear has abdicated
And in her place rules VALUE
but in the form of truth, with no pretenses
Only bare value--
The value of the dollar.

The room is and my being and my heart.

Brave New World: is it really the perfect human society in which to live?

The Brave New World is an existence based on the shallowest plain of simulated senses, programmed thoughts and predetermined responses achievable. Brave New World is nothing but animal existences on the lowest possible level, indeed a level at which animal and machine lose distinction and so in fact become one.

If one was decanted into the Brave New World he would never have even the remotest chance of judging his society and how it treated him, because before decanting he is robbed of the essential need to question. The Brave New World is ideally perfect only so long as no mistakes are made, for even small mistakes in this form of society can bring it crashing down around the ears of its dictators. Though the chances of these kinds of mistakes are remote, they do nevertheless exist. The prime examples of these mistakes are Bernard and Helmholtz, both thought to be perfectly programmed for correct attitudes and responses, yet both holding the potential disruption or even destruction of Brave New World in their hands. For Bernard perhaps there is the excuse of a laboratory error and he probably never would advance beyond his stage of self-pity. In Helmholtz' case it is evident that in the upper social classes a glimmer of individual thought of independent motive exists. Helmholtz' poetry reflects a deep awareness of his individuality and if this were capitalized on, it would bring about the fall of the Brave New World. The most glaring example of the imperfection in the society is Mustapha Mond. He, one of the ten world controllers for whom hundreds of thousands of beings would march into the sea like lemmings to be drowned, if he so decreed, sits in his office and reads the bible, Shakespeare and other equally pseudo-unstable works. This is the epitome, the pinnacle of instability and imperfection. The Brave New World has been extremely successful in the fields of maintenance, existence and survival of the species, but is totally deficient in one essential area, advancement. Man, in the Brave New World is being held at a particular level in evolution (intellectual) and man can only be held for so long before the accumulation of doubts bursts forth and carries him on further:

A New Theory of Biology was the Title of the paper which Mustapha Mond had just finished reading . . . meditatively frowning, picked up his pen and wrote across the title page, 'The authors mathematical treatment of the conception of purpose is novel and highly ingenious, but heretical and, so far as the present social order is concerned, dangerous and potentially subversive. Not to be published.'

There is no force, no government, no society that can end these doubts and questions once asked. With every passing day more and more individuals are banished to islands or if too radical, are sent to the lethal chambers. This in itself reflects a very high order of instability and imperfection in society.

To use the term human with respect to the Brave New World is erroneous, for no existence of any sort in the Brave New World is human. Humans as separate individual entities cannot and will not knowingly submit to external control of feelings and emotions. This is not to say that they cannot be duped into it, for to achieve the Brave New World it would have to be done that way. One possible method to achieve this trick is mentioned in the foreword to Brave New World.

As political and economic freedom diminishes, sexual freedom tends compensatingly to increase. And the dictator would do well to encourage that freedom.

To be human is to be irrational, seek unobtainable goals, entertain massive dissolutionments and be a little (if not totally) insane. Allowances for few of these are made in Brave New World, save for the great escape drug soma, which does not last indefinitely and does not irradiate the doubts or feelings which initiated its use:

. . . and between the soma holidays there were, of necessity, intervals. The odious sentiment kept on returning . . .

In the Brave New World man is degraded to the point where he is no longer human; he and the machine have wedded to become as one entity. In Brave New World man no longer controls the lever that spins the wheel, but is himself the lever, bolted, riveted to the wheel. Human, indeed is the second hand that moves inevitably round the watchglass - human, not in the slightest, but then neither are the higher biological elements of the Brave New World. Perhaps there is one being (aside from the outcasts) who is partially human, the controller, but even he bears strong resemblance to a mainspring.

"Community, Identity, Stability".

There is no escaping the fact that the first goal in the world motto has been achieved, but the other two are recognized only on the most superficial level, their massive faults hidden behind a thick veil of soma vapour and a volume of Shakespeare held imperviously close. There can be no final unbiased resolution to the question of Brave New World being a perfect human society in which to live and to state a complete approval or disapproval would take volumes.

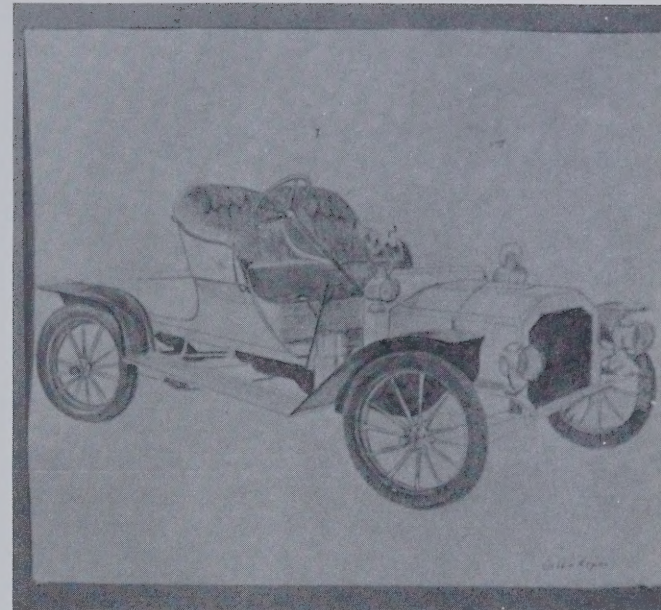

In summation, to borrow from Mr. Huxley:

"You pays your money, and you takes your choice."

Poetry by Bruce Ingram

In the evening when the day is through when the sun is drawn and the moon is new,
 I sit by the light of my mirror and the world
 in all its reflected views and sombre hues is clearer
 not in the way one perceives but in the way one feels and is urged into heeding.
 Sitting alone, fettered thoughts chaffing, bleeding, professed darkly
 by the mirrors light, when the day is through.

by Bruce Ingram

Emptiness and solitude
 Like a cold barren wasteland of snow
 This is my heart
 He has left
 Taking with him
 All the warmth and love I had,
 Bleak and forgotten
 Like one small flower in a great desert of sand
 This is my life,
 He has left
 Taking with him
 All the times and places
 That I had stored in my mind.
 No one understands,
 No one feels the compassion and sympathy
 That I long for.
 There is no other,
 Now I must face it.
 Now I must learn to live as that flower,
 Taking what little is given to me
 Until time and life
 Slips from my grasp
 And I can sleep forever
 Absent of all pain.

Juniors

JUNIOR QUARTER FINALISTS

The season could have proved an unsuccessful one with only a few veteran players returning. The coaching staff also saw the new faces of Mr. Housely and Mr. Camp- previously with the senior team. The team did the unexpected for themselves, the school, and maybe even the coaches, when they won all their league games. Quarterback Greg Martin directed the offensive drives with the very strong running backs of Carmen Bifoichi and Greg Short passing to Jim Pesce. The defensive stronghold with the likes of Rick Parker, Kevin Olds, Frank Pizzatelli and Terry Lee showed they too could put their team right into play-off contention. The team played well and only in the semi-finals suffered a heart breaking loss of 8 - 7 to Martingrove. Coaches Housley and Camp should be bravely commended for getting the injury riddled junior team to play as well as it did. Other names that should be mentioned for excellent play are all those names under the team picture.

Seniors

SENIOR — SEMI-FINALISTS

This year's Senior Cougars were bound and determined to show everybody that they were not to be taken lightly. The only trouble seemed to be that they started off losing their first two games. Then they showed that they could play as well as the coaches expected. Quarterback Bill Woodill used his offensive squad to the best of its capability. Good ground plays were run by the strong backfield of Jim Greenshields, Bruce Parker, Alan Skilnick, Alan Holmes and Stewart Fairweather; while clutch passes were consistently pulled in by Don McPhail and Ian Bilton. Paul Arcan, Roy Collins, and Steve Babe, and the Harvey boys were only part of the hard muscled defensive squad that helped place them in the quarterfinals with Alderwood. Water wings might have contributed greatly in a game of rainwater mixed delicately with mud and players. The game was lost, but not the prestige of having Bruce Parker, Jim Greenshields and Gary Craig make the All Star Team. The team knows that none of this could have happened without the driving force and humour of coaches Thachuk and Lackie.

The senior team was not a championship winning team but all members could be called champions for playing an exciting year of basketball. The team started off by coming third in the Northern division. From there we went to the 'C' division which consisted of the likes of Burnhamthorpe, Alderwood and Scarlett Heights Collegiates. We ended up tied for first place in the division with Scarlett Heights. The playoff game ended in a one-point win for S.H.C.I. in the 'second' overtime period at 48-47. This put us out of playoff contention.

The team attributes success and exciting games to the great coaching by Mr. Patterson, team work, hard practices and support from the rest of the school.

Etobicoke Jr. Champions

This years Junior Cougars have won the Etobicoke Championship. It is the second time NACI has won the junior title.

In the first half of the season we were 6-0 in the Northern Division against Thistletown, West Humber and Keiller Mackay. Then we lost to St. Mike's in the Nelson A Boylen tournament. During the second half of the season we were 6-0 again against tough competition from Martingrove, Silverthorn and Royal York. We defeated Richview in the quarter finals after placing first in 'A' Division. We then went on to prove we are No. 1 by beating Martingrove in the semi-final and Silverthorn in the final to become Etobicoke Champions.

From there it was to the TDIAA's and a win over Cedarbrae in the semi-finals. Unfortunately, a nerve-racking final made NACI lose by 2 points.

Overall it has been an excellent year for the team with great fun and spirit. The successful coaching of Mr. Housley should not be overlooked and the team and everyone else can surely thank him for it.

G. A. C.

The B.A.C. helped this year by organising night doubleheaders, not to mention intramural games plus golf tournaments, soccer, track and field and cross country.

The G.A.C.'s program consisted of intramural basketball, volleyball, gymnastics, badminton, archery, and track and field. They also sold hot dogs, doughnuts, pop and hot chocolate at football games and double headers to help raise money for the athletic banquet. Both the G.A.C. and B.A.C. help organized the Athletic Banquet.

The Senior Basketball team didn't get off to a very good start because due to lack of support from the girls in the senior grades, we brought girls up from the Junior team. Even with a coach who knew all the in's and out's of basketball we failed to make the finals. But due to our good coaching, we had a great time and learned a bit more about basketball; mainly how Juniors and Seniors could get together and make a great team.

Senior Basketball

Junior Basketball

Our Junior team won the championship from Kipling last year and it was Kipling's turn this year. Our Junior's lost to Kipling by a mere 31 to 27 score. But the Juniors swear they'll get it back next year. Many thanks to Mrs. Shewchuck, for her great coaching.

Again we have another fighting junior team. The success of this team should go to the girls themselves and the new coach. The juniors have always had the fight to win and this year they displayed it. Though there wasn't many student support help in cheering them on.

Due to the response from our junior girls we had enough to make NACI's first girls Midget Team. The girls did very good this year and should receive honourable mention, along with their coaches Janet Hobman and Helen Schiza.

Commencement

72

Mr. Hull, Mr. Knight, Platform Party, Fellow Students and Guests

And it came to pass at a time buried in the depths of the past, that some 300 potential human beings were funnelled into the gaping maw of a sprawling edifice called N.A.C.I. or NKVD or somesuch, (nobody really knew for sure).

As usual the mysterious inhabitants of these occasionally hallowed halls expressed dismay at the low quality of this raw material. Mr. Wanless spouted fire and brimstone and when Mr. Barnes spoke, he was accompanied by a quiet but distinct sound of muted thunder. Their formula for converting this rampaging horde of niners into human beings consisted of exposing those creatures to knowledge of self, of the universe and knowledge of that strange place called mathematics which is either everywhere or nowhere or possibly at right angles to everywhere, depending on your point of view of course. This being done, they set about encouraging any absorption which might take place, by use of a strange device (something called marks). Thrice yearly they conducted Quality Control Tests which resulted in the elimination of some components.

Knowledge, like Cyanide, like Alcohol and like medicine need not be appreciated to have its own subtle effects.

Wracked by severe biological and psychological storms their thinking was sufficiently diversified and enriched to enable them to ask some of the most basic, most demanding questions of all. Questions such as "all right just what IS going on here?", "so WHY is it going on?", along with "and how is it happening" are a beginning, leading to all true knowledge.

After all this, they managed to educate over 100 of those who began the process on that starkly brilliant morning sometime far in the misty past, when the six day war was only four months old.

To express the magnitude of this accomplishment I can do no more than quote a remark overheard last year at the Heritage Inn shortly after Commencement, this was, in effort, "well what de yuh know, pulled it off again".

And so we come to last year. If the other years had Quality Control Tests, last year could be called a Test to Destruction. For all that, this year was still a year of sheltered, personalized education. Last year we learned, by what is known as the shotgun technique, where material is blasted at the students in the certainty that they will intercept some of it. University is the epitome of the Howitzer technique.

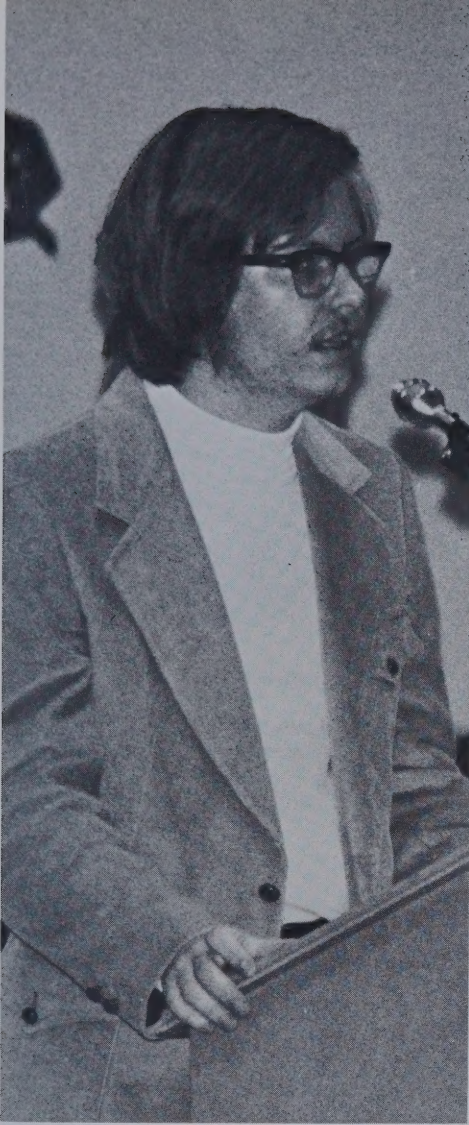

This somewhat raffish and oftentimes roguish mob of graduates have established for themselves a distinct character. Perhaps part of this character is exemplified by a daring attempt to photograph the scarlet lining of Mr. Thompson's black leather jacket or in the spirit of those dedicated period seven chemists who forewent their period eight Math C in order to follow up their experiment involving the distillation of alcohol. And then there was the militant aspect of last year's graduating class. The declaration of all out war on Math C and the casualty figures after Overkill in Math A, Physics, Math A, Biology, Math A, History or indeed in Math A, should amply demonstrate this problem. There was the dreaded forty minute flu, technically known as Euchremania and there was certainly something to be found Saturday nights, somewhere on some floor (anywhere, any floor). Again, it might have been a can of salted Mountain Dew, lovingly warmed over a Bunsen Burner and quaffed by an unsuspecting SRA executive whom I shall not name here (except to say that he was then the treasurer).

It was all this plus a new individualism, greater friendship and a tension which bathed events in its stark light.

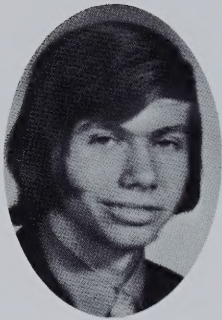

Tonight hopefully, we are meeting in celebration. It should benoted however that humans have the ability to look back at almost any time with the feeling that they were better off then than they are now. This is related to the feeling that the land across the mountains is more fertile, that we would be richer there or if you could only get to London or the new world all problems would be solved. The past is the ultimate in the unreachable, as whatever has been done, whatever has been said, cannot be changed and opportunities then missed will never return. That week in which you had twelve essays due and fourteen tests is remembered not for the tedium of the work you did but rather for the accomplishment, the feeling you had of having done it and of being finished with it. You find it rather amusing visualizing the not seemingly minor troubles which that young person had a long time ago. The past, being utterly unreachable, is always looked at as immensely better than it seemed at the time. For we will never be the people we were then and joys experienced then can never be really experienced again. And this is the essential sadness of memory. So tonight in at least one aspect is as much of a wake as a celebration. If this is so at least we can let it be an Irish Wake! And if it cannot be Finnigan's Wake, if the past cannot rise and live again we can at least hope for Winnigan's fake, in which case we can extract some advice and perhaps some hope from the past. For we were made what we are to-day in the past few years and so to this extent we owe them something.

As Valedictorian I am supposed to say farewell to the past on behalf of the Graduating Class. You will pardon me however if I do not do this. I cannot really speak for all of last years grade thirteens or any of our four year graduates. As compensation I can only offer my impressions of what really happened these last years and my thanks for being allowed to say them.

Mediterranean Cruise

S. S. Uganda

The Mediterranean Cruise was an experience that none of us will ever forget. Many new friendships were made, and all the students got to know the teachers on a friendlier basis. No one will forget that first night's meal on the Uganda; and then there was that journey through the Bay of Biscay which tended to rock the ship a little. We would like to thank the teachers. They were really great to all of us, and helped us in so many ways. Without them the trip wouldn't have come about. Thank you again.
